

Abstract

The invention provides an additive for internal addition, which improves the paper qualities of a pulp sheet, such as stiffness and bulk. The invention relates to a paper quality improver for internal addition, which comprises a polymer emulsion containing a natural cationic polymer (A) or synthetic cationic polymer (A') and polymer particles (B) containing vinyl monomer-derived structural units.